comptroller Myers Calls on Inspector Byrnes.

What Startling Things Could Not Those Missing Books Reveal?

Hundreds of thousands of dollars may hav been stolen from the city through the medium of the Market Bureau of the Finance Depart-

This the Commissioners of Accounts have ascertained in their examination of the Bureau ooks which were kept in such a way that it is impossible to say whether any, or if any, how much, money has been misappropriated.

Everything points, however, to a big leak in the city revenue in this Bureau.

A comparison of the market revenues in the three years of the worst reign of corrupt officials New York eyer knew with those of recent years shows that Tweed, Connolly and their ring thrued in more money for the rent of markets than their successors.

This, too, with Jefferson, Washington and Fulton Markets rebuilt and greatly increased market facilities furnished since their administration.

market facilities furnished since their administration.

There is no record of the rents charged in the several markets on file in the Finance Department, and the Commissioners of Accounts find it impossible to ascertain what the actual revenue to the city should be from this source.

This collectors even confess to a very lax system. They acknowledge shat, without authority, they introduced a sliding scale of rents, lowering and raising a standholders rent whenever they pleased, probably according as business was good or bad.

In some cases arrearages of more than a year are noted against standholders in the collectors books, when they were supposed to make collections every two weeks.

This was notably the case with a Jefferson Market dealer, who is charged with $500 arrears of rent.

Commissioner Barker said to-day:

Market dealer, who is charged with $500 arrears of rent.

Commissioner Barker said to-day:

"Our opinion is that these alleged 'arrearages' do not exist.

"We cannot un ierstand how a tenant of the city should be allowed to hold possession of a stand a year without paying any rent. It looks very much as though these large arrearages represent the amounts which the collectors simply did not turn into the city.

"The only way of informing ourselves on this subject and also on the subject of rates of rent is to examine the standholders, and this we propose doing.

"We are going to the bottom of this market business if the small appropriation for the maintenance of our office holds out."

Chief Inspector Byrnes, who was called in early in the week to assist in recovering the missing books, held a consultation with the Commissioners of Accounts this morning.

That these particular books would show evidence of fraud there is little doubt in the mind of the Commissioners, who rather despair of finding them, however, for they think that the parties interested have destroyed them.

Comptroller Myers, who is now as greatly increased in discovering and punishing the frauds in the Market Bureau as the Commissioners of Accounts, was in consultation with Chief Inspector Byrnes yesterday and it is understood that the inspector is devoting himself personsally to the work of unearthing the frauds.

Collector David Barrett, who collects the wagon fees in West Washington Market, called on Commissioner Holahan this morning and claimed that a great injustice had been done him in relation to the manner in which he has performed his duties.

to the manner in which he has performed his duties.

He claimed that he had turned in all of the maney collected, and said that there were many days when there were hardly any wagons at the market. He said that he could not make the farmers come.

This explanation did not satisfy the Commissioner, who claims to have information to the effect that a fair daily average of wagon fees is $100, and Barnet turned in an amount as large as this very seldom, and sometimes made returns of less than $2.

Comproller Myers said that the only way to place a check on the wagon collectors is to have a bell punch about their neck.

Superintendent of Markets Daly is introducing a system whereby the wagon tickets are doled out to the collectors and are accounted for every day.

every day.

He said to-day that he hoped to have his new system of bookkeeping ready in about two weeks.

Clerks from other bureaus of the Finance Department are temporarily filling the positions from which Williams, McLaughlin and Coope were removed yesterday.

The Comptroller has removed Clerk of Markets Woltman because of his continued illness. He did not wish to remove him for receiving bribes, as Mr. Woltman is not in condition to be heard in his own behalf on the charges which developed on the investigation.

A CORNER IN MIGS.

A Peculiar Result of the "Pigs in Clover" Craze,"

The "pigs " in "Pigs in Clover " are the or dinary marbles, or "migs," with which the festive small boy doth disport himself in the Springtime, and thereby hangs a tale.

There are nearly thirty thousand of these fascinating puzzles manufactured daily, and as there are four pigs for each one, the enormous there are four pigs for each one, the enormous number of 115, 200 marbles are used daily in making up the pig-driving outfit.

This phenomenal demand for the little jokers consequent upon the advent of the new puzzle has caused the dealers in marbles and those having a supply on hand to become piggish, and the price has doubled already and is still rising, and efforts are being made to "corner" the market.

and enors are to the market.

Thus does "Pigs in Clover" cause other pigs to fatten upon the succulent herbage.

This glorious country has been treated to corners of all kinds, but a corner in "migs" is unique.

Juvenile Clothes-Line Thieves. Henry Herne, of 200 East Eightieth street; Edward Cloner, of 1585 Second avenue: Francis Lynch, of 106 East Eighty-eighth street, and Henry Bowie, of 1547 Fourth avenue, whose ages range from eleven to lifteen years, were held for examination in the Hariem Police Court wide morning on the charge of stealing clothes from the reofs of flat houses in Harlem. Bowie was discharged for lack of evidence.

The Eight-Hour League met last night in Clarendon Hall and arranged for agitation meetings to bring about the short-hour workday in May, next year.

Ellacklisting is feared by some of the Fall River weavers, and a number have been refused employment on fancy goods looms which they operated before the strike. The Building Trades Section meets to night at 145 Eighth street, when the question of electing a new set of delegates to the Central Labor Union and reorganizing that body will probably be discussed.
